

General Surgery and Laparoscopy

.

. The Surgery is the specialty of the medicine that by means of incisions has access to the different organs from the body with the purpose of diagnosing or of treating some susceptible pathologies to being solved by this means.

. For relatively few years the access it has been tending to be minimally invasive reason why the Laparoscopy offers the advantages of the conventional surgery through small incisions which causes that the recovery and the post operating pain are much smaller and simultaneously there is an important aesthetic result.